

Public Health \(OP-742\), GN-374, June 1972.

Role of university hospital:

Within the regional health system, the university and general hospitals constitute important focal points of medical services, training and research. The university hospital is the basic element of the regional health system since it combines all three activities.